Prerequisite: Grade of $\geq$ C- in Calculus I, or AP credit, or 1818 college credit Correlated to $\geq$ D: SLU Math Index Score $\geq$ 1050 (see Fr. May for details)

Textbook Coverage: Chapters 1–6  Suggested Calculator: TI-84 or similar

Grade Items: Homework (13%), Quizzes (10%), Tests (11%×4), Final Exam (33%)

Homework: The primary input for this course is the textbook, and the main goals of the lectures are to introduce and illuminate it. Therefore, reading of the text is mandatory and expected after each lecture, before starting the assignment.

Homework is assigned after each lecture and done entirely online via WileyPLUS:
https://www.wileyplus.com/class/602319

Regular working of problems is essential for understanding how material unfolds in the next lecture. Solutions—an answer with supporting work—should be clearly and coherently written in your Course Notebook, as a preparation for the next quiz and test. The purpose of homework is to foster critical, independent thinking skills.

Quizzes: A weekly quiz is given on Friday, at the start of class. Each quiz consists of 1 problem similar to the homework; it will be no text, no notes, and no calculator. The purpose of the quiz is to check your ability to do homework-level problems in a timed situation, without external resources that would be unavailable during tests. Therefore the level of quiz problems are generally lower than that of test problems.

Noncumulative In-class Tests: 19 Sep — 18 Oct — 14 Nov — 08 Dec

Cumulative Final Exam: 12:00--13:50 Fri 15 Dec 2017 @ 346 Ritter

Strict Policies: Electronics, such as a text-messaging device or a laptop, are forbidden in class; the only exception to this disciplinary rule is if you have a registered disability, in which case you may qualify for extra time on quizzes and tests. Calculators are forbidden on all of the quizzes and tests. You qualify for a make-up quiz/test only if you submit a punctual excuse from a campus/medical office; notify me by e-mail beforehand if you anticipate this so that I can make preparations. Cheating is taken seriously and I will not overlook it, so keep your eyes to yourself!
